

DESIGNING TRUE EXPERIMENTS

1. Have at least two groups – control and experimental.
2. Randomly assign people to groups.
3. Treat the experimental group by manipulating the independent variable.
4. Observe the effect of the treatment on the dependent variable in the experimental group.
5. Compare the dependent variable differences (the outcome of treatment) in the experimental and control groups.